

COVER FEATURE

Pretty, bubbly and effervescent, Donna Wylde has graced the British Country music scene in one guise or another for many years.

In just a little over four years after making her decision to go solo, Donna Wylde has established herself as a firm favourite on the British Country music scene. Dubbed the Wolvestock Princess by Jim Duncan after her first visit, Donna is both proud and delighted to have been invited back this year for Wolvestock 12 when she will be making her fourth consecutive appearance at this prestigious festival.

Though only small in stature, Donna has a presence that can fill any stage or venue, nothing daunts this talented young lady, the larger the event, the more she rises to the occasion.

Donna Wylde

This year will see Donna performing at many of the major festivals. Her extensive repertoire is regularly updated and her ability to join in with many of the modern dance routines often allows her the flexibility of using alternative Country music whilst keeping the dancers happy. Equally at home in a concert style venue, her rapport and obvious self enjoyment readily engages any audience.

Over the past few months, Donna has shared the stage with Declan Nerney, Jimmy Buckley, Billy Yates, USA and eagerly awaits to appear alongside Raymond Froggatt in the near future.

To watch Donna perform it is evident that she enjoys every minute of what she is doing. She has a strong powerful voice and chooses her material well.

With four albums under her belt there are now plans for her to make another later this year and she is busy working on that project. Her albums are available at her gigs or from A & J Management who manage her.
